

FEAR HERRERA MAY CUT PERSHING OFF FROM SUPPLY BASE

Funkston Powerless to Prevent Cutting of the Northwestern Railway Line.

LITTLE HELP FROM CARRANZA

By Associated Press.

ED. PASO, Texas, March 23.—General Enriquez, civil governor of the state of Chihuahua, sent a telegram to General Carrasco, told him, declaring that General Luis Herrera, commanding the garrison at Chihuahua, still was loyal to the first chief and not to credit reports of his defection to Villa.

SAN ANTONIO, Tex., March 23.—Orders came from General Carrasco today for a night attack at points along the border should a rebellion in Mexico make it necessary.

General Carrasco was not altogether convinced of the truth of the report that General Carrasco, the deceased military leader of Chihuahua, had entered the field with Villa, and that the United States, but the rebellion of the report and the absence of acceptable evidence to the contrary caused the general and his subordinates to regard it probably true.

The censorship imposed at El Paso by General Carrasco was done without orders from headquarters here but it is known that General Carrasco has authority to go far in the exercise of his command in the meeting of extraordinary situations.

Staff officers of General Carrasco studied a more extended area of Northern Mexico today. The probable forces of Herrera and his 2,000 men were strongly considered, and at every point along the border line were taken of the position of American troops and the time it would take to move them to meet any situation.

American officials believed that General Carrasco had no authority to continue to operations that have for their object the strengthening of Villa's band and the harassing of General Carrasco's forces.

It was feared that he would cut the Northwestern railway line over which General Carrasco had no permission to remove supplies to the American troops now almost 50 miles into Mexico. To prevent this move General Carrasco, who is believed to have renounced the de facto government, The American army has in doubt that if Carrasco's troops are in position to oppose Herrera.

VILLA RECHIETS MEXICO. ED. PASO, Tex., March 23.—Villa has called a general strike and a cessation of hostilities to renounce his command and recruit new men for his army, it was reported here today. At this news here it was said Villa would have plans to operate with the forces of General Carrasco, who is believed to have renounced the de facto government. The American army has had no news of Villa for two days.

General Carrasco, until recently in command of the Carrasco garrison at Chihuahua, is said to be moving northward to effect a junction with Villa and this in connection with the report that the Carrasco garrison at Torreon had revolted and had occupied the town, had recruited the American army here.

With men augmented by the command of General Herrera, said to number 2,000, might be in a position to harass General Pershing's army and seriously interfere with the line of communication between the advancing lines of American forces at Coahuila and the base at Columbus.

An early agreement with the Carrasco government for permission to use Mexican railroads was greatly desired by army officers. The main base would then be transferred from Columbus and El Paso and the Mexican Northwestern railway could be used to ship men and supplies to Coahuila.

The railroad could be easily maintained against interruption while the present line southward out of Columbus over a desert might be readily cut short. Villa seemed a formidable enemy to army officers. The main base would then be transferred from Columbus and El Paso and the Mexican Northwestern railway could be used to ship men and supplies to Coahuila.

REPORT SUPPLIES LOST. COAHUILA, N. M., March 23.—Although officially denied at army headquarters, reports are well founded that some of the motor trucks carried out by General Pershing's command in Mexico are missing, together with their drivers and guides.

Two trucks with two drivers and guides were sent on an expedition for Coahuila last Monday, it was reported, soon after it was reported. It also is said that a driver reported to the advanced base here without his truck.

A feature in connection with the luncheon for business women today at the First Methodist Episcopal Church was a Model Day service, in which a Model Day was found, and over 200 business women participated. The services were continuous from 11 to 2 o'clock and were beautiful and impressive. Loren Jones sang appropriate songs with Miss Jones at the piano, the organist of one of the girls a verse of their mother's favorite hymn who sang and at the conclusion of the singing, the majority of the girls told what they appreciated most in their mother. Girls whose mothers were deceased, played the organ, while those whose mothers had died wore a white carnation. A series of three noonday luncheons were held in the church for downtown business women, each proving very successful.

The first day of the spring opening at the E. Dunn store is attracting many of the feminine shoppers who are charmed with the elaborate and comprehensive showing of the season's most attractive ideas in spring and summer merchandise. Every department is stocked with new goods and is in full attire for the occasion. All the new and smart styles are introduced in military, sport and misses' suits and other accessories.

Title newest styles are charming; some are daring, yet are not bizarre. The military department on the second floor is proving to be an attractive feature of the opening. It is a gay, gay season in military and the girls are admiring it. The motif dates back to the Directories and the Restoration periods and the chivalry of the sunhat hats are shown in all the most favored shapes and colors. The wide-brimmed hat and some slant brim over one eye. The forms assume many odd forms. A marked feature of this season's hats is the height, the towering effect being formed by flowers, ribbon, wings and feathers. The hats in colors are page, various shades of amethyst, African brown, azure and pastel shades. The black and white hat and the all black model are shown in stunning effects. Miss White is in charge of this department.

In the suit department, which adjoins the military salon, is found an exclusive line of ladies' and misses' suits, featuring all the correct ideas of the season's fashions. Every model is a masterpiece of perfect tailoring, with the fullflare coat, Norfolk styles showing smart belt effects and collars of contrasting colors, are shown in checks in black and white, brown and white, and blue and white. In all the newest colors and fancy materials, a number of clever checked selected suits, with the demimillie effect are included. For more dressy occasions, handwoven suits of taffeta, crepe de chine, crepe velvet, in combination with Georgette, lace, etc. In black, white, it would be impossible to describe the beauty of the evening gowns copied from the original antique, Dussoill and Steinleff models. Every combination is introduced in the display of top quality. There are the plain and fancy mixtures, the striking black and white checks, handsomely fitted, some having the fullness held in with a belt and many other bewilderling styles. The exhibition of wool, silk, cotton, also a number of attractive, all the latest sport ideas being featured. Ralph Cuthbertson, Jr., is in charge of this department. On the same floor is the corset department, in charge of Miss Julia Coyne, who has new models, including the latest colored broadcloth suit, are displayed.

There is a bewilderling display of charming blouses of Georgette crepe, embroidered and beaded, crepe de chine, and Georgette crepe, with a full and flared effect, and a combination collar, which may be worn high or low. Dainty lingerie lace trimmings blouses are also included in the collection. There is also a smart showing of tailored waist in silk and cotton materials. The unique sportswear department, also on the balcony, and an attractive showing of crepe de chine, washable silk and muslin underwear.

Special attention is given to the lingerie department on the first floor. Quiet hats of leathern, milan, fancy straw and blueette models of many different styles are shown, while there is a great display of dresses, including the Madison Louvre models, which have exceptionally clever suits.

All the newest fashion and silk materials for spring and summer are shown in all the popular colors and weaves. There was a large line of Combination pieces of rose and black, and Georgette, white, and green and black leather, set with stones of corresponding colors are attractively displayed in cases as are novelties in Jewelry, silk hose, gloves, neckwear in Georgette crepe and embroidered lawn, and other accessories to go with the wardrobe.

There is a neat display of unique art work which is decidedly new. Imported English chintz bed spreads in many pretty designs attracted much attention.

Art parades are to play a prominent part in Sunday's wardrobe. The Alpine and Mikado shapes were shown in plain green, fancy checks, plain colors in combination with Persian.

The newest pattern in carpets, curtains, draperies, portieres and curtain accessories are exhibited. Leather suit cases and traveling bags are shown in all pieces. The store is artistically decorated for the occasion, ferns being placed in every available space. Dress materials in striking designs and patterns are shown the judges. The carpet, drapery, valances and muslin underwear departments are in charge of F. G. Goebert.

Ralph Cuthbertson, Sr., has charge of the remainder of the first floor. The display windows created much attention and admiration of all. A Persian panel effect in pastel shades, formed a striking background for the display of millinery, dress coats and other accessories to a woman's wardrobe. Saturday will mark the close of the opening.

HARMON AND HARMONY.

The formal announcement of Harmon M. Kephart of Connellsville as a candidate for the Republican nomination for State Treasurer is interesting in view of the fact that it looks as if he would have no goodly position at the primary election. At the Republicans' nomination in a Presidential year his election would be a foregone conclusion. Without necessarily counting unattached citizens, it is not too much to say the next State Treasurer will be a Connellsville man.

Harmon M. Kephart did not expressly seek this nomination. He now holds the position of Chief Clerk of the State Senate, a position which is personally agreeable to him, and he will leave with great regret on account of his association. His service in this capacity has given him a statewide acquaintance which is primarily responsible for his present candidacy. He is a good Treasurer. His many friends have insisted that he be a candidate, and they are numerous and influential enough to insure his nomination at the primary.

This year the Republican party will have Harmon M. Kephart and Harmon.

WAR ON OUR HANDS.

Reports from Mexico indicate that the Mexicans have ceased to be factionalists and united against the American invader. The Mexican army has already marched across the border, but the men at Washington thought not. They did not estimate Mexican patriotism, call it sentiment if you like, to have any force. It seems that they were never more indolent.

Senator Sherman of Illinois wants President Wilson to have authority to call for 50,000 more troops to support the American invasion of Mexico, and the politicians out that the present forces are small enough to get lost in the waterless wastes of Northern Mexico.

The Courier has already incurred a guess that the country has war on its hands.

A TARIFF COMMISSION.

Among the bills booked for passage at this session of Congress is one creating a Tariff Commission. It is hoped that this will be a useful commission which will take the Tariff out of politics.

We are not clearly advised where it proposes to put the question, whether into patriotic statesmen or national commercial interests. But it is evident that the Commission can do more to recommend its conclusions to Congress, where they will be considered according to the policies adopted by the political parties.

A Tariff Commission is a useful investigation, as to the actual measure of protection necessary and proper to American industry, and to that extent it has always been favored by both political parties.

Connellsville will have a revenue of $10,000, only $72,000 of which will come from taxes on realty. City taxation is composed more largely of personal taxes than property taxation. The residents of the city, only 10,000, are taxed by improvements whether he owns property or not, so that it is perhaps equitable that his taxes be correspondingly greater. These taxes however, do not fall wholly upon the individual, but are shared out from individual interests. It is another prerogative of city government.

Dumber has no doubt about the coming of Spring.

The judgment of a handwriting expert is merely an expert opinion, but it is natural to look with suspicion upon a note couched in such unusual terms as agreeing to pay "thirty days after death."

Spring is a fresh young thing and fresher yet are her frolics.

The Chinese revolution was not easily a reformist but it has evidently convinced Yunnan that his dreams of empire are folly, and that the Chinese Republic has come to stay. Yunnan now wants to stay with it.

Southern cities are being fire-swept while portions of the north are in the grasp of floods.

The Washington legislature have agreed to speed up legislation now that the administration has come to a definite conclusion as to what sort of legislation it wants.

The fact has always been demonstrated that Connellsville is the West Penna. capital.

The Bad Man of Dutch Bottom didn't kill anybody when he shot it up, but the Bad Man ought to be rounded up.

It's the smile of Spring but the breath of Winter.

Spring floods and Spring openings are here, but Spring itself lingers in the climate.

Connellsville seems to be revolving around Bob Jones.

Connellsville business were never in better condition, thanks to a few years of strictly business administration.

Our Trade in Steel and Government Orders of making vital contributions to the Democratic contributions to the nation's industrial mismanagement in case Senator Pittman's bill passes and becomes a law.

The Kephart boom sits serenely on undisturbed by factionalism.

The court insists that landlords shall be responsible for the moulds of their tenants. To a reasonable extent only. A landlord cannot entitle the presumption that every woman is immoral until she proves herself vicious. This would be contrary to the law of the state laid down in the Fayette county court. But landlords should not knowingly and wilfully rent property for immoral purposes, and this is what the court means. After this warning landlords who blindly disobey this injunction may expect to be punished.

Under the Dome

Special to The Courier.

WASHINGTON, D. C., March 18.—Anybody who has been following the hearings on the government ship purchase bill had been going on for days before the proceedings became available to the public, and there is complaint of delay on the part of other committees of the public printer and the public printer declares that the committee do not send him the copy promptly. In 1908 and 1909, with a Republican and a Democratic committee held hearings on the Tariff, and the hearings appeared daily—as promptly as the Congressional Record. Testimony taken in the afternoon of one day was in the hands of the public printer in printed form the following morning, and so on.

This was Republican efficiency at work. A slouched Congress is on the job today.

"I am calling the attention of the people of New England to the delay and the protractedness of the Ways and Means Committee of the House in the preparation of the bill introduced by Congressman Hill of Connecticut, providing for an increase duty on dyestuffs," said a New England member of Congress. "This bill, which increases the duty on dyestuffs, has urgent needs now in every section of the country. It should have been passed weeks ago. The delay may effect hundreds of industries and thousands of operatives. It provides for sufficient protection to place on the market the American products of this business." The sufficient protection he placed on the market the American products of this business.

BOB JONES TELLS

appreciate selection "Ring the Bells of Heaven" was sung by the choir and the audience. When the invitation was given to persons, the audience were three old gray-haired men one being a well known resident of Connellsville, who is now in his eightieth year.

"I am, sir, Bob Jones," said his text, "I came for Thy Life." "I am not here to save you, or make you wise," said Bob Jones. "I am here to deliver to you a practical, common-sense message."

"You say, Bob Jones, I don't like the way I preach. I don't like the way the people listen. Why don't you take Christ into your life before I come?" It isn't a question of whether you like my preaching or not. You had better be a practical man and play a safe game. You say, 'I don't like salvation religion.' 'I have a right to think Christ I am going to do it in a spiritual way.' You don't come to him in a revival and if you don't do it when you are out of the revival what are you coming to Christ?

"Another thing you say, 'I am going to make up my mind and go into some church when this meeting is over.' If the revival campaign causes you to make up your mind to go into some church, you are a direct ingrate if you do. The revival campaign I have my opinion of a man who will sit quietly in the side door of a church when he has an opportunity of accepting Christ in public."

"You say, 'Bob Jones, you have got to be born again. I want to wait until I get to feel like it.' You say, 'Wait until I get to feeling better. It is a wonder to me that you have any feeling at all.'

"You say, 'Bob Jones, this is not the ultimate. I am not good enough.' The fact that you are a sinner makes you need Jesus Christ to die to save sinners."

"You say, 'Bob Jones, you walk until you get on your feet.' You say, 'I have got to get out and laugh at me if I do this thing.' That is the reason to do a kid to say, 'I can't picture a broad-shouldered man not doing anything because he is afraid of being laughed at by his friends.'

"I am waiting for him, you will say. 'I will keep it secret and I will never let anyone know. Well enough to go to hell with them.'

"Bob Jones' soul is, 'the reason I don't accept Christ is because you have too many hypocrites in your church.' You say, 'I want to get rid of the hypocrites, but you have not time building fires in hell for millions of years. I would like to see a perfect church, but I have never seen it. I sometimes smell whisky on the breath of some hypocrites and I know some of them are hypocrites. You won't come to God on account of the hypocrites, but are preparing to live with them in hell forever.'

"You say, 'Bob Jones, this is not my excuse. God loves me too much to damn me. You are a sinner and a nice chap. I am too nice to be damned. Because God won't damn you, you won't live for Him. This kind of a man is the meanest man in Connellsville.'

A NOVEL

BY
GEORGE AGNEW CHAMBERLAIN
COPYRIGHT, BY THE CENTURY CO.

"Master, we do not know," answered the oldest of the men, their leader.

"Fever, or smallpox?" asked Lieber.

"Fever."

With a look of relief Lieber went down the steps to the hammock. A sheet had been thrown over the post to keep out the rain. Lieber pulled it off. A shiny, slightly moist, like eyes, but he did not shrink. "Using him up here," he said, springing up the steps and sweeping a smile towards some old magazines off a great rawhide settle on the veranda.

They laid the sick man on the settle and Lieber started to strip him with gentle, deft hands. Kemp strode forward and helped but Gerry stood by, powerless to move. He had recognized Alan, the man he had sworn to break if ever he met him. Somebody else had broken him, terribly, pitifully. Gerry's eyes shrank back into his head. A lump came into his throat. Alan was dead. Alan with whom he had wandered barefoot through those quiet lanes of home, with whom he had fished and swum, and once had fought. What a little fury Alan had been in that boy's battle! It had not been fought to finish. On an impulse they had stopped and looked at each other and turned away, ashamed to shirk hands.

Lieber, once heavy, bold and clumsy, was transformed. He worked quickly, with sure hands. The body lay stripped on the settle. Under it still lay the hamper and dusty blankets. The pillows and board had been torn off the floor. Lieber extended his patient silently, without a sound. The splinter was fearfully distended and pushed out across the abdomen. He could feel its late-plyed margins. The feet were swollen. The face was yellow with the sickly gray-yellow of molded straw. Come had set in.

Lieber dangled a great medicine chest out from his pocket. With alcohol he rapidly washed out the dust-filled nostrils of the stricken man, and bathed his face and then the hands and body. Then he took out a hypodermic syringe and a graduated glass. In the glass he added a powder and with steady hands added measured drops of a liquid of faint amber hue.

Gerry found his tongue. "What is it?" he asked.

"Quinine and arsenic," said Lieber shortly.

"Arsenic? Isn't that dangerous?" said Gerry.

Lieber glanced at him. "It will probably kill him."

"Then why—why—" protested Gerry. A great desire to protect what was left of Alan had come over him.

"Why?" said Lieber dryly. "I'll tell you, Mr. Lansing. Because it is less cowardly to kill a man than to let him die."

He mixed the solution in the syringe and then grasping Alan's arms he pressed it into the veins came out in swelling network. "It's his arm like that," he commented. Kemp clutched the arm. The bones cracked as he bent to the grip. Lieber chose a swollen vein and placed it with the needle. He forced the dose into the blood. "There," he said with a smile to Gerry, "that's what's known as an intravenous administration of quinine and arsenic! If another paroxysm hits him he's done for, but we'll know all about that in forty-eight hours."

He went into the house and brought out clean sheets, soft woolen blankets, pillows and pillows. Kemp had never seen such lines! Gerry had almost forgotten the feel of it. Gerry came to life. With one hand under Alan's shoulder and another under his hips, he lifted him as though he were an empty shell, while Kemp and Lieber drew out the dust-covered blankets and hammock and spread first a cage

PETEY DINK—Pete Gets a Big Hand in This Scene, but Look Where He Gets It.

IT BOOSTS TOWN

Bond Asks Support in Community's Best Bazaar.

In presenting its claim for public support in its bazaar, with its annual concert at the end of the month, on April 3, the Connellsville Military Band contended that no organization has done more to advertise Connellsville and that none has been more generous in donating its services free of charge for all kinds of public entertainments.

The Military Band is always on hand at Hallowe'en, Memorial Day and on other days when celebrations are held and gives frequent free concerts at the bandstand and during the summer and receives nothing for its services. It costs from $600 to $800 a year for the upkeep of the organization. Part of this amount is secured from the annual concert and part from other entertainments.

The general public takes these things into account when tickets are placed on sale for the concert and the response is always liberal. An effort will be made to get the ultimate sum for the band's program is one that Director John T. Ginter and his men feel is a dandy.

The Connellsville Military Band's Uniontown concert will be held in the Penn Theatre, it was announced yesterday.
